Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Tuesday 07 Sep 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Fine for many Wednesday but becoming more unsettled by Thursday.

This Evening and Tonight:
A warm and humid night, with some mist and fog patches in the north. Some thicker cloud arriving into the southwest bringing some showers with risk of thunder, particularly later in the night.

Wednesday:
Central, eastern and northern areas, dry with sunny periods, very warm or hot inland. Cloudier across western and southern parts with showers, some heavy and thundery, these moving northwards later.

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Largely cloudy, with scattered showers and thunderstorms on Thursday. Very slowly becoming drier and more settled through Friday and Saturday. Warm at first, but slowly turning cooler from the northwest.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.